#3.10 CONT'D Chapter 11 Status Conference

FR. 4-7-21, 7-21-21, 9-10-21, 10-28-21, 12-9-21

Docket 1

Tentative Ruling:

Ruling for January 13, 2022

Continued to 2/10/22 @ 1:30 p.m.

Proposed Tentative Ruling for January 13, 2022

The Debtor asserts that she has received approval for a reverse mortgage which will allow her to dismiss this case, and she has self-calendared her motion for authority to enter into that mortgage for February 10, 2022. To date, the only creditors who have actively participated in this bankruptcy case are secured creditors AIS Capital Investments, Inc. and Elena Kogan, both of whom have filed motions for relief from the automatic stay. It appears that the Debtor no longer wants to be in chapter 11 and that the creditors wish to pursue their claims against the Debtor outside of bankruptcy. Consensual dismissal of this case may be in the best interest of all the parties. Counsel for the Debtor, AIS and Kogan should be prepared to address whether they consent to dismissal.

Ruling for December 9, 2021: Continued to 1/13/22 at 1:30 p.m. The Court will issue an Order to Show Cause re conversion or dismissal and will set the hearing for 1/13/22 at 1:30 p.m. to trail the status conference.

Ruling for October 28, 2021: Continued to 12/9/21 at 1:30 p.m. Status report must be filed and served on all creditors by 11/24/21. A new bar date, 1/7/22, for government units is set. Debtor must file and serve new notice by 11/8/21. Debtor must file amended plan and disclosure statement by 11/30/21.

Ruling for September 10, 2021: Continued to 10/28/21 at 1:30 p.m. Court will issue a notice of continuance.

#44.00 CONT'D Hearing

Objection to Claim #10 by Claimant David Bernal and David Valle. in the amount of $ 3,290,109 Filed by Debtor Player's Poker Club, Inc.. (Kogan, Michael)

FR. 12-9-21

Docket 204

Tentative Ruling:

Tentative Ruling for January 13, 2022:

Debtor has filed an objection to the putative class claim ("Claim No. 10") of David Bernal and David Valle ("Claimants"). The objection seeks disallowance of the claim in its entirety or, in the alternative, a determination that claimants should not be permitted to assert a class claim, i.e., that claimants may only pursue a claim on their own behalf. The Debtor makes two principal arguments: (i) that claimants should have--but failed--to timely bring a motion seeking class certification under Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7023 before filing their claim and (ii) in any event, that the Court should not apply Rule 7023 to the adjudication of Claim No. 10. Rule 7023 incorporates by reference Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23.

The Court is not persuaded Claimants were legally required to file a motion seeking application of Rule 7023 prior to filing their claim. That the proof of claim is clearly asserted as a class claim is adequate to put the Debtor on notice that Claimants are asserting a claim in a representative capacity. The Court does not believe that a motion and ruling by the Court on the Rule 7023 issue is a prerequisite to the Claimants filing the claim. However, now that the Debtor has objected to the claim and specifically challenged whether Rule 7023 ought to be applied, that issue is ripe for decision.

The determination of whether a claim may be allowed on a class basis contemplates a two-step process—even before reaching the merits of the claim. First, the Court must determine whether it is appropriate to apply Rule 7023 to adjudication of the claim. Second, and only if the Court decides to apply Rule 7023, the Court must address whether the claimants satisfy the requirements of Rule 7023 for certification of the class. See In re Tea Station Investment, Inc., 2021 WL 4988436 at *5-*6 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. October 26, 2021); In re Verity Health System of California, Inc., 2019 WL 2461688 at *7 (Bankr. C.D. Cal. June 11, 2019). Here, the Court need not reach the second question, because it declines to apply Rule 7023.

The filing of a claim objection (i.e., motion to disallow the claim) initiates a contested matter within the meaning of Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9014. Pursuant to Rule 9014(c), certain of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure apply automatically to contested matters. Rule 7023 is not one of them. But the Court has the discretion to apply it. Courts have developed a three-factor framework, known as the "Musicland factors," to guide the exercise of this discretion:

- (1) whether the class was certified prepetition;
- (2) whether the members of the putative class received notice of the bar date;
- (3) whether class certification will adversely affect the administration of the estate.

In re Musicland Holding Corp., 362 B.R. 644, 654 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2007); see also In re Chaparral Energy, Inc., 571 B.R. 642, 646 (Bankr. D. Del. 2017). "No one factor is dispositive; a factor may take on more or less importance in any given case." Chaparral Energy, 571 B.R. 642, 646. The key question is "whether the benefits of applying Rule 7023 (and Civil Rule 23) are superior to the benefits of the standard bankruptcy claims procedures." Gentry v. Siegel, 668 F.3d 83, 93 (4th Cir. 2012).

There is no dispute that the class was not certified prepetition. Thus, the first factor favors not utilizing Rule 7023. See In re Verity Health System of California, Inc., 2019 WL 2461688 at *8. When a class has been certified prepetition, there may be efficiencies in continuing adjudication of the class using the class action process. But when there has been no prepetition certification—as the circumstances exist here—the equities favor utilizing the ordinary bankruptcy process to adjudicate parties' claims.

Likewise, there is no dispute that all members of the putative class received notice of the bar date. Where putative class members have received actual notice of the claims bar date, the second factor weighs against applying Rule 7023. In re Verity Health System of California, Inc., 2019 WL 2461688 at *8. This is because the bankruptcy claims process provides each of the putative class members an opportunity to assert any claim they may have against the Debtor. With the benefit of this process, it is not necessary to utilize the class action procedures contemplated by Rule 7023.

Chapter 11

The third factor is whether use of the class certification procedure will adversely affect the administration of the estate. To the extent this factor weighs against the application of Rule 7023, it does so only slightly. The Debtor argues that allowance of a class claim will adversely affect the Debtor and creditors because it will increase the amount of allowed claims that must be satisfied under a plan. The Debtor argues that if the claim is disallowed, the Debtor can confirm a chapter 11 plan that pays all other creditors in full.

But that is not what is relevant here. The question presented is procedural. The question is whether application of the procedures contemplated by Rule 7023 (rather than reliance on the ordinary bankruptcy claims process) will adversely affect the administration of this chapter 11 case. The Debtor's arguments suggest that if the Court applies those procedures, the success of the chapter 11 case will be jeopardized and the cost of administering the case increased substantially. The Court is not persuaded.

Regardless of the procedure utilized, Claim No. 10 is a disputed and unliquidated claim. The estate will incur cost and delay in litigating that claim. Although there may be some additional, incremental costs and delays in applying the procedures of Rule 7023, the Court is not persuaded that these additional costs and delays would be as substantial as the Debtor suggests or that they would jeopardize the success of the Debtor's reorganization efforts.

Weighing all of the Musicland factors, however, the Court concludes that application of Rule 7023 to the adjudication of Claim No. 10 is not appropriate. Although there was a prepetition state court case pending prepetition, and some discovery conducted, bankruptcy intervened before any class was certified. Since then, all members of the putative class have received notice of the claims bar date and an opportunity to file a proof of claim in this case. Resort to the procedures in Rule 7023 is simply unnecessary. Moreover, although the Court is not persuaded that use of Rule 7023 would substantially impede the administration of this case, the Court is persuaded under the circumstances that the additional costs and delays that may result in doing so are not justified.

For the foregoing reasons, the Court declines to apply Rule 7023 to Class No. 10. The claim is therefore disallowed as a class claim. Claimants nevertheless may pursue Class No. 10 in their individual capacities. To the extent the Debtor requested disallowance of Claim No. 10 in its entirety, that request is denied.

Ruling for December 9, 2021: Debtor is required to reserve claimants' counsel at the correct address. Continued to 1/13/22 at 1:30 p.m.
